1 Kings 13:

(My translation)

¹ A man of God went from Judah by the word of Yahweh into Bethel, just as Jeroboam was standing near the altar to burn incense.

² And he cried out against the altar by the word of Yahweh and said, "Altar! Altar!

Thus says Yahweh, 'A son will be born to the house of David, Josiah by name. On you he will sacrifice the priests of the high places who burn incense on you, and on you they will burn men's bones.'"

³ And he gave a sign that same day, saying, "This is the sign which Yahweh has spoken: The altar will be split apart, and the ashes that are on it will be poured out."

⁴ When the king heard what the man of God said, which he cried against the altar in Bethel, Jeroboam put out his hand from the altar, saying, "Seize him!" His hand, which he put out against him, dried up, so that he could not draw it back again to himself.

⁵ The altar was also split apart, and the ashes poured out from the altar, according to the sign that the man of God had given by the word of Yahweh.

⁶ The king answered and said to the man of God, "Entreat now the favor of Yahweh your God, and pray for me, that my hand may be restored to me." So the man of God entreated Yahweh, and the king's hand was restored to him and became as it was before.

⁷ The king said to the man of God, "Come home with me and refresh yourself, and I will give you a reward."

⁸ But the man of God said to the king, "Even if you were to give me half of your house, I would not go in with you, neither would I eat bread nor drink water in this place; ⁹ for thus was it commanded me by the word of Yahweh, 'You shall not eat bread or drink water, or return by the way that you came.'"

¹⁰ So he went another way, and did not return by the way he had come to Bethel.

¹¹ Now an old prophet lived in Bethel, and his sons came and told him everything that the man of God had done that day in Bethel. And they told him the words that he had spoken to the king.

¹² Their father said to them, "Which way did he go?" For his sons had seen which way the man of God went, who had come from Judah.

¹³ And he said to his sons, "Saddle the donkey for me." So they saddled the donkey for him, and he rode on it.

¹⁴ He went after the man of God, and found him sitting under an oak tree. He said to him, "Are you the man of God who came from Judah?" He replied, "I am."

¹⁵ Then he said to him, "Come home with me, and eat bread."

¹⁶ But he said, "I cannot return with you, or go in with you; neither can I eat bread nor drink water with you in this place.

¹⁷ For I have been told by the word of Yahweh, 'You shall not eat bread or drink water there, or return by the way that you came.'"

¹⁸ But he said to him, "I, too, am a prophet just as you are; and an angel spoke to me by the word of Yahweh, saying, 'Bring him back with you to your house, that he may eat bread and drink water.'"

But he was lying to him.

¹⁹ So he went back with him and ate bread in his house and drank water.

²⁰ Then, as they sat at the table, the word of Yahweh came to the prophet who had brought him back;

²¹ and he cried out to the man of God who had come from Judah, saying, "Thus says Yahweh, 'Because you have disobeyed the mouth of Yahweh, and have not kept the commandment which Yahweh your God commanded you, ²² but you came back and ate bread and drank water in the place of which he said to you: "Eat no bread, and drink no water;" your corpse will not come to the tomb of your fathers.'"

²³ And so it happened, after he had eaten bread and after he had drunk, he saddled the donkey for the prophet whom he had brought back.

²⁴ When [the man of God] had gone, a lion met him on the road and killed him. His body was thrown on the road, and the donkey stood beside it. The lion also stood by the body.

²⁵ Then, men passed by and saw the body thrown on the road, and the lion standing by the body, and they went and spoke about it in the city where the old prophet lived.

²⁶ When the prophet who brought him back from the way heard of it, he said, "It is the man of God who was disobedient to the mouth of Yahweh. Yahweh has therefore delivered him to the lion, which has torn him and killed him, according to the word which Yahweh had spoken to him."

²⁷ He spoke to his sons, saying, "Saddle the donkey for me," and they saddled it.

²⁸ He went and found his body thrown on the road, with the donkey and the lion standing by the body; the lion had neither eaten the body nor torn the donkey.

²⁹ The prophet lifted the body of the man of God and laid it on the donkey and brought it back to the city to mourn and to bury him.

³⁰ And he laid the body in his own tomb; and they mourned for him, saying, "Alas, my brother!"

³¹ After he had buried him, he spoke to his sons, saying, "When I am dead, bury me in the tomb where the man of God is buried. Lay my bones beside his bones.

³² For surely the word will come to pass which he cried out by the word of Yahweh against the altar in Bethel, and against all the shrines on the high places which are in the cities of Samaria."

³³ After this event, Jeroboam did not turn back from his evil way, but again he made priests for the high places from among all the people. Whoever desired, he consecrated him; such a man became one of the priests of the high places.

³⁴ This matter became the sin of the house of Jeroboam, so as to cut it off and to destroy it from the face of the earth.

A Strange Tale!

One cannot help but notice the repetition of the phrase “by the word of Yahweh” (or similar) throughout this account. The prophet’s mauling, so obviously a divine judgment, served as a graphic warning to Jeroboam and the northern kingdom for their flagrant violation of God’s law — a warning Jeroboam failed to heed (vs. 33).¹

The point being that God’s word is what must be obeyed, and not what we deem to be right.

The old prophet’s offer of refreshment seemed reasonable enough.

But the man of God disobeyed Yahweh’s explicit command. He should have challenged the old prophet’s claim to angelic revelation. He was naïve and far too trusting.

The importance of Yahweh’s word is seen throughout First Kings, not just in this 13th chapter.

The focus is on obedience to, and the fulfillment of, that word.²

Application to Preterism

The charge is often made that preterism is an innovation — that we teach things that contradict the Church’s creeds and confessions and historic teaching. Our approach supposedly involves what Peter calls “privately interpreting Scripture” (2Pet 1:20) — thinking we can understand the Bible better than the historic Church. Even those (Protestants) who emphasize sola scriptura condemn us for this.

However, as this story shows, we must indeed believe God’s word, and we must do so (if need be) in defiance of those who claim authority or expertise or special revelation.

The Scriptural declarations concerning the timing of Jesus’ return are both clear and numerous.

Creeds and confessions ought to be evaluated according to the Scriptures, but all too often the converse happens: Scripture is interpreted through the lens of one’s own church tradition.

Recall the “noble” Bereans who examined Paul’s novel claims (Ac 17:11); to be open-minded is a good trait.

There is some historical precedent here:

The Protestant Reformers were similarly accused of teaching novelties. They were supposedly “privately interpreting Scripture” for themselves, over and above the received wisdom of popes, councils, and the Fathers. But the Reformers were right to affirm the priority of Scripture. They recovered vital, long-neglected doctrines. And, in defiance of church and state authorities, they translated the Scriptures so that people everywhere could read and discern these things for themselves.

Moreover, that accusation itself reveals a fundamental misunderstanding of Peter’s intent.

The apostle declares (2Pet 1:20, KJV):

... no prophecy of the scripture is of any private interpretation.

Many Protestants implicitly agree with the Catholic view that this forbids people interpreting Scripture apart from what the Church collectively teaches.

Even some Bible versions promote this notion through mistranslation (e.g., CEV, CJB, GNT).

¹ Jeroboam’s flagrant disregard for God’s law is related in 1 Kings 12:28-33. He made golden calves for the people to worship, set up his own priesthood, and instituted a festival of his own making.

² See 1 Kings 2:4, 27; 12:15, 24; 14:18; 15:29; 16:1, 7, 12, 34; 17:5, 16, 24; 18:31, 36; 22:5, 19, 38.

However there really is no excuse for such a misunderstanding and misuse of the passage because Peter explains precisely what he means in the very next verse (2Pet 1:21, ASV):

For no prophecy ever came by the will of man: but men spake from God, being moved by the Holy Spirit.

The “for” (Greek: gar) at the beginning of verse 21 introduces the basis for the truth expressed in verse 20. Peter’s entire point is that the prophets of old did not concoct their own prophecies; rather, their impulse for prophesying came from God.

We may say, then, that Peter’s declaration has nothing to do with the reader’s own take on a particular Bible passage; he is rather referring to the source of the original prophetic utterance.
